

BATTLE WITH AN INTRUDER.

A Stranger Forces His Way Into Grocer Alcott's Apartments.

A Policeman's Club Probably Prevents a Terrible Tragedy.

The family of Conrad Alcott, who lives at 626 Chrystie street, were aroused about 6 o'clock this morning by a loud knocking at the door leading to a grocery store in the front part of the house. Edward Tegert, a boy fourteen years old, who is employed by Alcott as a clerk in the store, was out of bed at the time and preparing to open the shop.

When he heard the knocking he hurried to the door, but before he could reach it the intruder had broken the door and made his way in.

"Hello, Mike," he shouted to the boy, and without stopping rushed on towards the apartments where Mr. Alcott and his family live.

The grocer ordered the fellow out, but instead of obeying he drew a revolver and pointed it at the man.

First, the grocery boy, again tackled the intruder and tried to push him from the room.

"Put up your hands!" cried the intruder. "I'm scared to think of anything except his own safety, so I jumped from the chair and ran away."

A pistol shot rang out behind him, but the lad reached the sidewalk safely and sped along Chrystie street until he reached the Stuyvesant Avenue Post Office, Sugar, and is far more economical, costing less than one cent a cup. It is delicious, nourishing, and EASILY DIGESTED.

A QUEER TALE OF ANARCHISTS.

Agents Said to Be Studying the Details of Minneapolis High Life.

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Chicago, April 16.—A Minneapolis despatch says that that city is greatly excited over the discovery of a local society of Anarchists, whose parent organization is in Chicago. This society is a most powerful organization and has branches in every large city in the Union. The local society is a particularly flourishing one.

The agents of the Society are servant girls or butlers. They secure employment in wealthy families and pay no rent, all expenses of the families is carefully noted, also the kind of food used on the table and the estimated cost of the same. They then draw the furnishings of the residence, the quality of clothes worn by the inmates, and, in fact, everything that goes to make up first-class establishment. The Society makes a weekly report of all this to the Society.

The ultimate object is not apparent, but it is well known that the agents are always having visions of dynamite bombs and other terrible murderous missiles of assassins.

The boy pluckily barred the way, but the man did not stop to parley, and, brushing the lad to one side, entered the bedroom where Alcott was sleeping.

The grocer ordered the fellow out, but instead of obeying he drew a revolver and pointed it at the man.

First, the grocery boy, again tackled the intruder and tried to push him from the room.

"Put up your hands!" cried the intruder. "I'm scared to think of anything except his own safety, so I jumped from the chair and ran away."
